DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ueda et al. (USPN 5838400) in view of Burdis (USPN 6172794).

Regarding claim 1, Ueda teaches a substrate which is made of multi-layered flexible pad pattern via holes for electric connection. Ueda discloses a type of substrate, which also consists a surface conductor layer, and has electrical connection through holes. See column 5, lines 9-24. Ueda further teaches an interface substrate that can be connected in a reliable way even if the number of pixels increases. See column 20, lines 1-4. Specifically Ueda teaches a multi layer flexible substrate (FPC2) with its electrical connection through anisotropic conductive film (ACF1). See col. 19, lines 40-51 and Fig. 12A. Ueda does not teach the use of a single laminar substrate with electrically conducting patterns on opposite sides. Burdis on the other hand teaches the use of one laminar substrate with an electrically conducting film, on which layers are carried on. See col. 1, lines 16-20.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made replace Ueda's flexible substrate (FPC2) by Burdis single laminar substrate for the purpose of applying thin film, or depositing a layer by “sputtering” technique (see col. 3, lines 27-30).

Regarding claim 2, Ueda teaches shield casins metal frame. Ueda also teaches electronic parts related to shield casins mounted in a flexible substrates the portion of which is composed of conductor. See column 4, lines 41-44.

Regarding claim 3, Ueda teaches a conductor layer L3, which is gold plated. See column 14, lines 57-59.

Regarding claims 4-5, and 8, Ueda teaches that multi layer flexible substrate has its portion made of conductor layers, which is electrically connected with insulating substrate through conductive film. See column 4, lines 24-30.

Regarding claim 6, Ueda teaches a display device with flexible substrate. See column 4, lines 5-14.

Regarding claim 7, Ueda teaches the wiring substrate which is made of multi-layered flexible substrate producing increased wiring density and increases pattern of conductor. See column 6, lines 34-45.

Regarding claim 9, Ueda teaches applying a voltage to common transparent pixel electrode relative to configuration of substrate (sub 1) and (substrate sub 2). See column 16, lines 49-56.

Regarding claim 10, Ueda teaches liquid crystal display device with thin film. See column 1, lines 29-43.
